Campbell Sode is a trial and appellate attorney with a background in commercial litigation. He joined LPHS after federal district court and Ninth Circuit clerkships. Before clerking, Campbell spent two years at Winston & Strawn LLP in Washington, D.C. As a former Ninth Circuit clerk, Campbell uses his innate understanding of the litigation process to counsel clients on winning cases and appeals.

Campbell graduated from the University of Virginia School of Law in 2018, where he was a peer advisor and member of the Virginia Journal of International Law. Before law school, he graduated summa cum laude from Rutgers University and was inducted into the Phi Beta Kappa honor society. At Rutgers, Campbell was a four-year letterwinner on the NCAA Division 1 men's lacrosse team, playing in 35 career games and winning the Wayne Duke Award from the Big Ten Conference.

During his career, Campbell has published online essays with the Minnesota Law Review, the Northwestern University Law Review, the Southern California Law Review, and the Washington University Law Review. Campbell's law review essays comment on the topics of college athlete endorsements, disability rights, and appeals from territorial and tribal courts throughout the United States.

Campbell is licensed to practice law in California, the District of Columbia, Texas, and New South Wales, Australia (as a solicitor).

Outside of work, Campbell leads an active life, coaching lacrosse, working out, enjoying the great outdoors, and parenting a pet cat with his wife.
