Rebecca Adams represents a diverse list of clients — from top Fortune 500 companies to small businesses to law firms and individuals — in both state and federal courts. Rebecca represents her clients in state and federal court across a wide range of complex civil and business litigation matters such as breach of contract, business torts, trade secret and non-compete disputes, trademark infringement, professional liability defense, negligence, and more.

Rebecca graduated with merit from the United States Naval Academy and served five years on active duty as a Naval Surface Warfare Officer before transitioning into the Navy Reserves. On active duty, Rebecca served and deployed as the Weapons Officer on the USS Rushmore. She also worked with numerous foreign navies coordinating multinational training exercises across the globe as an Exercise Planner at Mine Countermeasures Division 31.

Rebecca went on to earn her J.D. from Stanford Law School, where she received the Pro Bono Distinction for her extensive public service during law school. At SLS, she served as an editor on the Stanford Journal of Law, Business and Finance, and as the Communications Director of the Stanford Law Veterans Organization. During law school, Rebecca completed numerous clerkships including the California Attorney General's Office, the Security and Exchange Commission, the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Northern District of California, and the Santa Clara District Attorney's Office.

Prior to joining LPHS, Rebecca practiced high stakes commercial litigation at Latham & Watkins LLP in Washington, D.C and litigation boutiques Yetter Coleman LLP and Arnold & Itkin LLP in Houston.

Today, Rebecca lives with her husband Josh and their three children in Dallas. She loves spending time with family and cheering for her alma maters' sports teams.
